A friend, enemy

By William L. Trimyer
Judas: Friend and Enemy
Lesson For June 27, 1982
Bible Study Passages: John 12:3-6; Mark 14:10-11, 17-21, 43-46

INTRODUCTION

How can a person be a friend and an enemy at the same time? That is not an easy question to answer. We'll all known people who exhibit the qualities of friendship, yet who also reveal a certain leaning toward evil. In a sense that can be said of any person, for everyone possesses the potential for both good and evil.

In choosing friends we tend to choose those who will stick by us through the thick and the thin. I have some friends whom I know would do no evil against me.

Jesus had a friend who later became his enemy. In light of Judas' behavior it may be more correct to say that he was an enemy all along. Did Jesus choose wrongly? Did he somehow miscalculate Judas and mistake him for a loyal and trusting disciple? Was Judas ever really a disciple? These are not easy questions to answer, but what we hear about Judas from the Bible, may help us understand him better.

It is interesting that no one ever gives their child the name, Judas. Only dogs are given such a name!

A Nice Guy Image [John 12:3-6]

Judas at least tried to portray himself as a nice guy, concerned for the poor and to do what is right. Judas, however, was only able to fool a few of the people. He certainly didn't fool Jesus.

The scriptures say that when Mary annointed the feet of Jesus with an expensive ointment, Judas questioned the economy of such an action. He suggested that such fine ointment should be sold and the money used to help the poor. Of course, Judas saw the use of expensive ointment as a waste of good money.

Judas was the treasurer for Jesus and the other disciples. His behavior is not uncommon, for we sometimes hear how those who hold the "purse strings" of groups and businesses relate to the money as if it were their very own. Some Christians relate to the church's monies and budget as if it were their own.

For Thirty pieces of Silver [Mark 14:10-11]

Judas probably had dollar signs for pupils! He never turned down an opportunity to turn a fast buck. When the scribes and Pharisees approached Judas with an offering to betray Jesus he willingly accepted. He sold Jesus for a few shekels of silver. What's even worse-is that he sold his own soul for a meager amount of silver.

We cannot quite fully understand Judas and his action. Thirty pieces of silver would not permit him to live in luxury. Perhaps his motivation stemmed from his disappointment in Jesus as a powerful, political redeemer. Perhaps he was discouraged that his own lifestyle had not improved since associating with Jesus. Whatever his reason, Judas received payment for his act of betrayal.

The Plot Thickens [Mark 14:17-21]

The supper in the upper room became a climax in the drama of disclosure. Jesus openly declared to his disciples that one of them would betray him. Naturally, each disciple wondered who that might be. "Is it I?" each one inquired. Jesus answers, "It is the one who dips with me in the dish."

Some have argued that Judas was simply a puppet in the divine drama of redemption. But such a notion takes away his free will to choose good or evil. Judas acted on his own accord, not out of twisted fate or coerced acts of evil.

The Kiss of Death [Mark 14:43-46]

The Gethsemane garden was a favorite place of solitude of Jesus. It seems only natural that he would go there prior to his trial and crucifixion.

At the garden Jesus is surrounded by the guards, scribes and elders. They watched as Judas made his way to Jesus and kissed him. This was a common greeting.

We know the rest of the Gospel story. We know also the fate of Judas. Scripture states that he went out and hanged himself. Suicide over the possibility of forgiveness shows the twisted thinking of Judas.
